Subject: Re: SASWG - letter to ADD manufacturers

[REDACTED]

In Q2 would it be worth adding a point about reduced efficacy or perceived efficacy of on site ADD's e.g.
2. How do you respond to any reported technical problems and specifically any reported efficacy issues with ADDs on site and in what time-frame?
Manufacturers may see technical issues as ADD not making sound rather than appropriate sound.
Thanks

Subject: SASWG - letter to ADD manufacturers

Dear All,

[REDACTED] and [REDACTED] have drafted a letter to ADD manufacturers as requested at the last meeting – (which I have subsequently tinkered with a little)– asking for some information on how ADDs are currently being tested. I attach the letter. Can I ask you please to have a look at this?
I don't think there is anything remotely contentious given the discussions we have had- and would like to send it out on behalf of the group well in advance of the next meeting.
I will assume all are content if I do not hear to the contrary by Tuesday 11th February.
I did not include the Crown Estate (but happy to do so) as they were not technically a member while we have discussed this.

Thanks
